from traffic and parking*

MTA ROLLS OUT BETTER WAYS TO GET THERE!

Our national anthem was born in Baltimore 200 years ago, and the whole region is celebrating in style. With tall ships at the Inner Harbor, nationally televised flag ceremonies at Fort McHenry, multiple events on the ground and the Navy's Blue Angels overhead, public transit can help you get the most out of this once-in-a-lifetime event. That way, you won't miss a moment by getting stuck in traffic or searching high and low for parking.

See the map for options that will get you to the heart of the action using MTA's Local Bus, Light Rail, Metro Subway Commuter Bus (weekdays only), MARC Train and other public transportation options.

PICK UP A STAR SPANGLED SPECTACULAR COMMEMORATIVE CHARMCARD

TRAVELING FROM THE WASHINGTON D.C. AREA?

MARC Train Weekend Service on the Penn Line will take you to Baltimore's Penn Station, where you can catch the Nos. 3, 11, 61 or 64 Local Bus from St. Paul Street to downtown. Light Rail direct from Penn Station will also get you downtown where you can exit at Camden Yards, then walk a few blocks to the Inner Harbor at Light and Conway streets for service to Fort McHenry via the Local Bus No. 1 and the MTA Shuttle Bus. If you're going directly to Fort McHenry, exit at the University Center/Baltimore Street Stop and walk three blocks east to catch the Local Bus No. 1 and the MTA Shuttle Bus to Fort McHenry. Weekday travelers can also choose the MARC Camden Line to Camden Yards.
